

Privacy Policy for Track

Last Updated: September 26th, 2026

Your privacy is paramount. Track is built with a strict local-first philosophy. We do not sell, track, or share your personal data with third-party networks, analytics companies, or data brokers.

1. Integration with Apple Frameworks

Track leverages advanced iOS features to run smoothly, handling your data locally and securely:

- HealthKit (Step Counting & Fitness Data)

Track accesses Apple's HealthKit to read your daily step counts and workout progress. This information is processed strictly on your device to display your metrics. We do not transmit health metrics to external servers or use them for advertising or marketing.

- MapKit (Location & Route Tracking)

MapKit processes location data entirely on-device to track and map your physical walks. Your real-time location data is never sent to us or tracked in the background without active permission.

- GameKit (Achievements & Communities)

Track uses GameKit to manage leaderboards, achievements, or multi-player interactions. GameKit data is tied directly to your Apple Game Centre profile, governed entirely by Apple's own system privacy practices.

2. Settings Synchronisation (CloudKit)

Track utilises Apple's CloudKit infrastructure to keep your application preferences synchronised without collecting personal information:

Anonymised Data via CloudKit: Track uses Apple's CloudKit Public Database framework to store and sync your app configurations (such as your chosen activation states and layout options).

No Sensitive Content: The synced data strictly consists of anonymous application settings. Track never records, remembers, or syncs the web elements you have hidden, nor does it store your browsing history.

No Personal Information Shared: Your settings are entirely anonymised and decoupled from your personal identity. We do not attach or collect names, email addresses, hardware IDs, or any private identifiers.

3. Analytics, Advertising, and Storage

We protect your digital footprint across the board:

No Third-Party Analytics: We do not track your app behaviour or feature engagement via external tracking software.

No Advertisements: Track features no ad networks, preventing third parties from building profiles about your usage.

4. Your Rights and Data Control

Under standard privacy laws (including GDPR and CCPA), you remain in complete control of your data.
